

Octopus – 60 Seconds

Annrcr: 5:20 p.m. It's a local KinderCare. And the cars are rounding up the children.

(SFX: children laughing, papers rustling, various goofiness)

Dad: Whoa. That's my kinda hug. Good day, huh?

Boy: GREAT day, dad-o.

Annrcr: At Kindercare, learning comes from doing. And everyday there's a little something different happening.

Dad: Tell me all about it.

Boy: (very excited – speeding along) Okay, um, we had a field trip and we went to the aquarium and saw this awesome octopus. He had eight legs but you couldn't count them 'cause (fading out quickly)

Annrcr: From newborn to elementary age, KinderCare provides a specially-designed curriculum for every stage of development. Whether it's right in our learning centers, or a short bus ride away.

Boy: (still at 100 mph.) And they had these sharks that were really cool and had lots of big teeth. Hey, what are we having for dinner?

Dad: Well it was going to be fish sticks, but now...

Boy: How about octopus?

Dad: Sounds good to me. Scrambled or fried?

Annrcr: KinderCare: Where kids want to come back.
